Many Need Our Help

As many as 1 million Americans live with Parkinson's disease. That's more than multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy and Lou Gehrig's disease combined. Approximately 60,000 Americans are diagnosed with Parkinson's disease each year, but there are thousands more whose disease goes undetected. Incidence of Parkinson's increases with age; however, an estimated 4 percent of cases are diagnosed before the age of 50.

Resources for Parkinson's patients and their families have often lacked in comparison to other more well known diseases. The First Coast Parkinson's Run was founded to change this for the local area of the First Coast of Florida. Awareness of the disease and collaborating with organizations across the country has been key to getting educational, financial, and community resources to the local community.

All proceeds and donations go directly to patients, caregivers, support groups and organizations that are striving for awareness, resources, and a cure for PD. Your support impacts thousands of patients and caregivers by providing resources that insurance, corporate budgets, and individuals may not be able to provide.
